Our Learning

4th Grade Math: We are learning about fractions. Students are adding fractions with common denominators and placing fractions on a number line from smallest to largest. Additionally, students are learning how to make an improper fraction a mixed number and turn a mixed number into an improper fraction. I am really proud of 4th grade math. They are working hard to learn new, challenging skills. Way to go!

Reading: Third graders read the novel The Chocolate Touch and fourth graders The Underworlds in class. We will review each novels comprehension questions and extensions in small groups this week and begin a small project in class.

Science/Social Studies: Students brought home a light study guide on Friday. Our assessment will be on Wednesday. We will study light throughout this week and begin Sound next week.

Writing: Students are peer edited their personal narratives with a partner and will begin their final drafts in class this week.
